Before they were famous: How The Sunday Times first wrote about today's biggest name

Since the turn of the millennium, Sunday Times writers and editors across every section of the paper have proved to be particularly adroit at picking rising stars to feature in the newspaper. The art of prediction is a risky one in journalism and is often – we'll be honest – informed guesswork at best: for every Adele or Benedict Cumberbatch there are scores of nobodies who even their best friends probably don't remember were once going to be the next big thing.

In compiling this collection, we have pulled together more than 40 examples of people, bands and companies that proceeded to hit the big time following their exposure in the pages of The Sunday Times (we're far too modest to suggest that we had anything to do with their success, but you never know...). And while we're not going to say we plucked them from obscurity, as a number already had a decent track record at the time we featured them, we chose those who seemed to have that little extra je ne sais quoi that set them apart from the herd.
