Morristown National Historical Park Amphibian and Reptile Inventory March-Sept 2000 National Park Service

Under a National Park Service/Wildlife Conservation Society Cooperative Agreement, an inventory of amphibians and reptiles at Morristown National Historical Park in New Jersey was conducted from March through September 2000. Six standardized sampling methods were employed; anuran call counts, egg-mass counts, time-constrained search, coverboards, turtle trapping, and minnow trapping. In addition, animals encountered outside of standardized surveys (temporally or spatially) were recorded as incidental encounters.
